Stephanie Ritchie is a principal in the Bader Martin accounting and assurance practice. She also heads the firm's client accounting practice.

Stephanie provides accounting and business consulting services to startups and closely held businesses, with an emphasis in the real estate, technology and family business sectors. She is a member of the firm's real estate and family business practice groups.

Stephanie's work experience in private industry provides her with an insider's knowledge of accounting and business operations. Clients benefit from her strong communication and relationship skills, which enable her to provide advice on accounting, financial and business matters as challenges and opportunities arise throughout the year.

Stephanie is also experienced in advising clients on QuickBooks and on enhancing operations and efficiency by streamlining procedures and eliminating redundant efforts.
